I'm a Sims4 mod creator that specialize in animations. About me: I got into modding by chance in 2020 at the beginning of the pandemic. I noticed custom animation is something that's really lacking in the modding community and decided I should give it a try. I was immediately fascinated by it and before I know it I was spending 12 hours a day learning how to mod. Fast forward to the end of 2021 I was working full time during the day and modding after work till midnight everyday, eventually I came to the conclusion I had to choose one because I was getting really burned out and the stress was taking a toll on my mental and physical health. So I decided to quit my job and do what I love the most! Modding full time means I will have time to create bigger mods with higher quality. I would really appreciate if you would consider supporting me on patreon as this is my only source of income.	About Elephant Stories Podcast Dear Friends, If you know me, then you know that one of the toughest things for me to do is ask for help...yet here I am. Being the oldest sibling and a naturally independent person, I have always prided myself in how I could persevere solo; not always because I wanted to but as a learned way of existing (from trauma). Over these past few years though, uncontrolled circumstances and simply growing older has taught me that everybody needs somebody and that's okay. So, I need your help.	BOTH HAVE "ABOUT ME IN THEIR HOMEPAGES

Overall assessment:

Overall, both has its good and bad but nonetheless I still prefer patreon, design wise, content wise, Patreon has just more engaging design especially when you see its homepage it's very interactive than buy me a coffee and it's way easier to understand while buy me a coffee can give you personalized homepages and patreon only has the same layout for each user I still prefer patreon since it is the same as every creator I don't get lost in their homepage while buy me a coffee made me lost at some point while looking for other creators, as for the content since patreon is well known, most creators go there which means most of the contents you want to look for are there, and searching through other creators that creates the same content isn't so hard because they can show you users who are immediately has that content if you search "SIMS" creators with "SIMS" content will immediately be show and buy me a coffee doesn't have that, you need to clearly type the creator's username to see
